SINN FEIN UNYIELDING: TO INSIST ON REPUBLIC; BREAK IN TRUCE LOOMS

BRITAIN WOULD LIKE TO HAVE AMERICA TO JOIN IN THE ANGLO-JAPANESE ALLIANCE

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright, 1921 by The Times Publishing Co.)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Great Britain would like to broaden the Anglo-Japanese alliance, so that in its place would be a treaty between the United States, Great Britain and Japan.
Indications of the British desire in a purely informal way and throw an interesting light on the motives and hopes of the powers who will be assembled at the Washington conference.
The United States government has not been asked to become a party to the Anglo-Japanese alliance—nothing so formal as that has been suggested though it is interesting to note that the Japanese Press as early as last June began discussing just such a plan. The American government is aware of the British attitude as reflected in the statement made to the dominion premiers and it is considered the better part of wisdom here to make no comment, direct or indirect, upon the vicissitudes of British diplomacy.
Yet the big facts are coming out slowly to show why the Washington conference was summoned and what were the controlling influences in the conversation which preceded the decision to call the nations together not merely on disarmament but on far Eastern questions.
Significant Statement
The most significant statement from the British thus far which has not failed to be noticed here is the following sentence in the summary of the official proceedings of the imperial conference of dominion premiers:
"In accordance with the suggestion which was believed to have been made by the American government that the conference on disarmament should be preceded by friendly conversations or consultations between the powers principally concerned in the future of the far east and the Pacific, the imperial conference, anxious that for the Anglo-Japanese agreement, there should be substituted some larger arrangement between the three

DEMOCRATS TO DEFINE ATTITUDE ON TAX BILL

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 16.—The attitude of Democratic minority of the house toward the administration tax revision bill, which was introduced late yesterday, was to be determined today at a party caucus. Decision to have the Democrats on the ways and means committee file a minority report on the measure was forecast by some leaders.
Meantime, the committee, with the Democratic members present, was to pass formally on the bill as amended as a result of the action yesterday of the Republican conference, which voted 86 to 87, to postpone repeal of the excess profits tax and higher income tax rates until next January 1, and to put off until the same date the proposed increase in the corporation income tax.
After the conference action and before Chairman Farley presented the bill in the house, minority members of the ways and means committee declared to reduce the amount of the corporation income tax increase from 5 percent to 2 1/2 percent, the figure originally agreed upon at the White House tax conference a week ago, and to put in half the proposed manufacturers' tax 12 cents a gallon on cereal beverages.
The changes made in the original committee draft were estimated by some Republicans to increase by $200,000,000 the $2,000,000,000 yield which it had been figured would be returned under the bill as drafted by the majority committee.
The program agreed upon by the Republican conference yesterday for house consideration of the bill, called for the adoption of a special rule limiting debate to four days from 11 a. m. Wednesday, and fixing 3:00 p. m.

Daring Holdup In Gotham

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Six automobile bandits held up an "L" station in the Bronx early today, locked the ticket agent and chopper in the former's booth, and escaped with $513.
Two of the band remained at the foot of the station stairs and coolly advised prospective passengers not to go up, as no trains were running. They further explained there was "some sort of holdup" on the line. Detectives still are searching for three automobile bandits who held up Benjamin Siragusa, vice president of a condensed milk company, on the street yesterday and escaped with $2,300 after shooting him through the shoulder.

20 KILLED IN 'BOOTLEGGER' WAR ON NEW YORK "CURB"

NEW YORK, August 16.—Joseph Sileo was reported by the police today to be dying with sealed lips—a victim of a bootlegger war in the Italian quarter which has rolled up a casualty list of twenty in the last three months.
Despite the fact that the attack on Sileo was made in the midst of a crowd of fifty picnickers at New Dorp Beach, Staten Island, detectives assigned to the case were unable to gain a single clue as to the assailant's identity.
Terror of the "camorra" they said, had so chilled the hearts of the witnesses that none could be found who would admit even having seen the man who emptied three chambers of a pistol into Sileo's body as he sat on a hotel veranda at New Dorp. Two of Sileo's brothers, who were nearby, professed to be entirely mystified. Sileo, on his hospital bed, refused to discuss the shooting. The picnic went merrily on to its conclusion, with detectives circling through the crowd to prevent the outbreak of further trouble.
Eleven of the nineteen shootings that preceded Sileo's took place at or near the corner of Grand and Chrystie streets in the lower East Side. This corner, the police say, is the scene of a secretly conducted bootleggers "curb market."
Detectives also are trying to trace to the bootleggers' fund a shooting that occurred early today in the Bronx. Joseph LaZaro, the victim, said he had been shot by a man posing as a prohibition agent who first tried to extort $500 in exchange for immunity for arrest on a charge of having a can of Italian wine in his possession. He said he could not identify his assailant.

Watching For Carload Of Whiskey

DETROIT, MICH., August 16.—Michigan state troopers today were watching for a car load of Canadian whiskey reported to have reached Windsor from Eastern Canada for shipment into the United States across Detroit river. No trace of the reported shipment had been found on this side of the river today.
State officers redoubled their efforts to stop the flow of liquor early today when they made numerous raids in Detroit's suburbs, seizing beer and whiskey and placing several men under arrest.
State officers today began a check of reports that a large part of the liquor reported as being brought across the river was finding its way to Toledo and other cities by automobile over Dixie Highway. It was announced today that automobiles were to be stopped and searched along the highway.

BRITISH MILITARY PREPARING FOR EVENTUALITIES AS DE VALERA INDICATES IRISH ATTITUDE

DUBLIN, Aug. 16.—(By The Associated Press)—The Irish Republican parliament met here today, in the first open session in its history to consider the British government's Irish peace terms. There were 130 members present, including those who had been released from prison to admit of their attending the session. A great audience crowded the gallery floor as Eamon De Valera led the members into the chamber.
In opening the Dail Eireann at its first public session here today, Eamon De Valera, the Republican leader, reiterated Ireland's claim for separation from Great Britain and declared the only government the people recognized was the ministry of the Dail Eireann, the Irish parliament.
He and his colleagues, De Valera said, had adopted towards England the principle laid down by Cardinal Mercier of Belgium, towards Germany—that external authority was unlawful. The Irish, he said, stood for the ideals enshrined in the American Declaration of Independence.
Mr. De Valera provoked laughter by describing the British attitude as that of a great nation demanding guarantees for its safety from a small state.

Do Not Think British Offers Just

The cabinet, Mr. De Valera declared did not think the British proposals were just.
Mr. De Valera pointed to the virtually impossible conditions surrounding negotiations with the British government for the position, he said, was that of a man unarmed facing a man pointing a pistol.
There were people who wanted to negotiate to save their faces, he continued, but the Sinn Fein would not negotiate to save faces, but to save, if possible, the bloodshed and for the right and the principle.
Prayer was offered in beginning the ceremonial and then the oath was administered to all the members en masse.
John T. Kelly, was re-elected speaker of the parliament, but he declined the office and Professor John McNeill, was chosen.
After the formalities had been concluded and Mr. De Valera, as head of the Irish Republican governing body, had addressed the assembly, the parliament adjourned.
Mr. De Valera in his address said he would tomorrow give an account of the negotiations with Mr. Lloyd George, the British prime minister, after which the reply to the prime minister's offer would be considered in private session. The members in attendance included a half dozen women, among whom was Countess Marlevier.
Mr. De Valera said that at tomorrow's session, besides recounting the negotiations between the Irish and British governments, he would in a general way give an account of his own department and that afterwards the other ministers would give accounts of their departments.
The proposed reply to Premier Lloyd George, continued the president will be considered in private session. All understood the seriousness of the reply, he declared as the British government intended to make it an issue of peace or war with the Irish nation.
After the reply was sanctioned and ready for despatch, there would be another public session of the Dail Eireann, Mr. De Valera continued. Further elections to office would occur, and then the parliament would work upon propositions to be advised by the new Dail ministry.
Mr. De Valera asserted that Ireland had at the elections virtually declared by plebiscite for a Republican government, not because the people were Republican doctrinaires, but because Irish freedom and independence could not at present be realized in any other way.

Sinn Fein Will Not Yield

DUBLIN, August 16.—Summing up impressions of the Dail Eireann meeting today, political observers gave these views:
That the whole atmosphere of the meeting, including Mr. De Valera's speech had given the impression that the attitude created by the Republican leader's reply to the British government would be maintained.
That his speech suggested that the reply already drafted by the Dail Eireann cabinet would show an unyielding position.
That it would be endorsed unanimously by the Dail Eireann, they consider a certainty.
That there developed further assertion of Irish independence and defiance of British authority.
That a government claiming sole authority in Ireland was part of the program in conception.
That if the decision of the parliament was not to stand absolutely on the position indicated by Mr. De Valera in his previous communication to Mr. Lloyd George, there were only two alternative ways out—the submission of the question to a plebiscite to the people, and a move on the part of the government to induce Ulster to come into the proposed dominion.

Recalling British Troops

BELFAST, August 16.—(By the Associated Press)—It is reported here that the military authorities in Ireland have cancelled all leaves of absence for both officers and men, and that all officers and men who are away on holidays have been recalled. It is stated this step was taken merely as a precaution against surprise and has no other significance.

LONDON, August 16.—(By the Associated Press)—All soldiers on leave from Ireland in Aldershot and Farnborough have been ordered by telegraph to return to their regiments immediately.

Has Mania For Stealing Boilers

ORLEANS, FRANCE, August 16.—A few nights ago burglars broke into an ironmonger's warehouse and the next morning the only object missing was a large boiler. The police at first believed the theft to be the work of a madman. Later they arrested Mr. Brothier, a wealthy wholesale wine merchant and owner of a chateau and extensive grounds at Cerdon-sur-Loire.
Boiler admitted the theft, saying he had committed it in a moment of weakness, as he had ample means to buy such a boiler had he wished. A number of similar boilers, some of them weighing over a ton, were found in the cellars of his country home.
Bothier's lawyer says he will plead kleptomania.

WOMAN'S SUICIDE MYSTERY IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Police today began a search for a letter from the editor of a North Dakota periodical, in the hope that it might contain some clue to the motive for the suicide last night of Mrs. Mary DeBrito, 28, advertising writer for a department store. They also were searching for three men, two of whom, representing themselves as employees of the coroner's office, visited the young woman's rooming house a few hours after she was found dead in a bathtub with a gas tube in her mouth and took every paper and photograph from her room.
The third man sought appeared at the rooming house last Saturday and representing himself as an insurance company employee inquired into Mrs. DeBrito's life history. Late the same day he visited the girl's office and is said to have threatened her.
Mrs. Edward Weiler, with whom Mrs. DeBrito lived, started police on the search for the letter from the magazine editor. Two weeks ago, she said the girl read an article in a North Dakota magazine advocating tar and feathers as punishment in certain cases. She wrote a letter to Governor Lynn Frazier protesting and asking why the magazine was not suppressed.
A letter of acknowledgment from the governor's secretary, which Mrs. DeBrito showed to Mrs. Weiler, said her complaint had been sent to the editor.
Last Friday Mrs. Weiler told police, the girl received a letter from the editor.

CRANE CALLS RUSSIA LAND OF HORROR

BY CHARLES R. CRANE
BERLIN, Aug. 16.—Russia needs the sympathy of every human heart and the aid of every charitable hand. The news embargo of the government is quite as disastrous as the commercial embargo of the allies.
Not only is there material starvation. There is also religious and intellectual starvation. Medical and scientific men have had no journals and no communication with conferees abroad for years.

Few newspapers are published and these contain no real news. Also these have little circulation, being placed on billboards for accidental readers.

The government controls all presses and all paper, and no special publications, either religious or scientific, are possible.
There is real horror in this intellectual isolation.

Actual reductions in taxes for this fiscal year, the report continued, are estimated at approximately $200,000,000, total collections under the new bill being figured at $3,770,000,000 as against estimated collections of $3,570,000,000 under the present law.

Play Will Begin Wednesday In The First City-Wide Tennis Tournament

Grand Lodge of Haru Gari Will Convene Here Tonight

The first city-wide Tennis Tournament ever held in Portsmouth, will open on Wednesday afternoon. Twenty-seven teams have entered the race and when the dust has lifted and the winning team appeared, the two partners who compose it will have "done something" to have won the city championship.

The twenty-seven teams are from six different groups. York Park has entered seven teams, the Golf Club, seven, Trinity church sixteen teams, Franklin Avenue church two teams, the Rose Ridge Club two teams and three teams have entered as independents.

Postma Halted On Towpath, Moonshine Is Found In Buggy, Arrested, Blames Wife

Acting on a tip Deputy Sheriff Walter Riecky Tuesday forenoon halted Peter Postma, 39 years old, Slab Run farmer, on the towpath road, near the Scioto bridge, as he was coming to the city, and a search of the man's buggy resulted in the uncovering of three and a half gallons of moonshine liquor neatly packed in a market basket in glass jars. A can of milk, butter and eggs were also found in the vehicle.

Postma was promptly placed under arrest and with his companion, Harry Long, 32 years old, of 711 Ninth street, was taken to the county jail and both locked up on formal charges of violating the prohibition laws.

Postma, who is a native of Holland, claimed this was the first liquor he had ever manufactured and declared in bitter tones that his arrest was brought about by his wife, from whom he is separated.

The officers claim to have information which reflects Postma's statement of never having made liquor before, and on the other hand say they can show that he has been peddling his product in this city for some days past.

Clark Explains Why He Had Gun; Case Continued

Jennings Clark, 22 years old, who was arrested in connection with the finding of moonshine liquor at the home of his mother, Mrs. Emma Bell Clark, 823 Eleventh street, during a raid by county officers the other night, pleaded guilty when brought into Municipal court Tuesday on a charge of gun totting, the officers claiming that the defendant was armed with a revolver at the time he was taken into custody.

The defendant explained the presence of the gun in his clothes by stating when suddenly there came a knock at the door which caused him to drop the weapon into his pocket. The "knockers" proved to be the officers.

Attorney Small for the accused conducted the case.

TO REPORT ON CEMETERY SITES

At the Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors' luncheon today Secretary W. S. Harris reported for the New Cemetery committee. His report was on the progress of the committee which had H. L. Mr. Clark is to send the committee a written report in which he will give the negative as well as affirmative reasons for each site viewed.

The Board also authorized the appointment of a committee to work on the municipal bathing pool idea suggested by Floyd Chabot. Mr. Chabot's idea is to have a bathing pool near the lake.

CHAMBER OF C. WILL SEND COMMITTEE TO CALL ON MR. FORD IN EFFORT TO GET TERMINALS

Chamber of Commerce has been in communication with Mr. Ford's office for the last two months but while the correspondence does not indicate what Mr. Ford plans are along this line it was thought best that would be the proper thing to do to send such a committee to Detroit. It will at least be a most courteous action and one that should mean much to the Peers of the City.

The Committee on Committees will meet Wednesday and at this session it is expected that the committee to make the trip to Detroit will be selected.

Night-Blindness

What is known as night-blindness is a rare condition in which a person's vision evening finds that objects are becoming less and less distinct, and at last he is totally blind. This may occur without previous warning and cause great alarm, but the next morning the victim of the condition finds to his delight that his sight is restored. This is repeated every night, but at last the eyes become so weak during the day also, that the victim may become partially or totally blind. This strange affliction may be epidemic. It has attacked bodies of troops exposed to great fatigue and the glare of the sun's rays. It is seldom met with in temperate climates, except among sailors just returned from tropical regions. It is frequent among the natives of some parts of India, who attribute it as one of their ailments, to sleeping exposed to the moonbeams. The most probable cause of the affection is, however, exhaustion of the power of the retina from over-excitement, or from excessive light, so that this organ is rendered incapable of appreciating the weaker stimulating action of twilight or moonlight.

Wives of the Bundles

Some Americans of a steamer which stopped at a New Guinea port were visited by several natives. The party included a chief and his retinue accompanied by the chief's son. The visiting dignitary was very much interested in some bright hatchets on the deck and expressed his desire to own one. As a joke he was offered one in exchange for the key, but several in exchange for the key, but he refused to entertain the proposition and left the ship. Shortly after he returned, accompanied by six women which he offered for one hatchet.

Salute The New Adjutant, Harry Doerr

Harry Doerr was appointed by Commander S. D. Ruggles as Adjutant of James H. Dickey Post, No. 23, American Legion, last night when an enthusiastic meeting was held in the Royal Savings hall. He takes the office vacated by J. Paul Heibel, who is leaving the city. The appointed officer will hold office until the first of the year, when new officers will be elected.

After some discussion relative to the Women's Auxiliary, the Adjutant was instructed to write to the Ladies' Auxiliary, Cincinnati, and invite members of that organization to come to Portsmouth to help install the new Auxiliary here. The date will be set to the convenience of the visitors. The charter for a local Auxiliary has been here for several weeks.

Fall and winter time activities were discussed. There is a possibility that the Legion will have a football team and later a basketball five. Club room amusements were also discussed and considerable time was spent on the matter of securing a motion picture machine for the hall. The Legion can secure films from Washington at any time and as there is a machine operating in the Legion membership, all that is needed is a machine. Pictures would be shown on meeting nights. The entertainment committee will look after this matter with authority to purchase a machine if the plan is advisable.

Wildcat Investment Schemes Separate Ohioans From $250,000,000 In Three Years.

PROMISED HIGH RETURNS

Big Interest Rates Prove Lure For Many Investors Who Lost—Chief Justice Marshall Declares Public Must Begin Era of Safe and Sound Saving; That Too Many Women Wear Short Skirts Instead of Gingham Aprons.

Columbus, O.—(Special).—Wildcat investment schemes during the last three years took a quarter of a billion dollars from the people of Ohio, according to figures just announced by a government office here. In other words, $250,000,000 was flched from the gullible public through promises of large returns by the way of high interest rates.

The amount lost by Ohioans in bad investments during the last three years was four times as large as the price paid by the United States for Alaska, the Panama canal strip and the Virgin Islands.

All Are Failures.

In Toledo alone, a total of $3,353,000 was dropped into worthless promotions, stocks and securities, according to Kenneth Barnard, secretary of the Better Business Commission of Toledo. Mr. Barnard said that he had observed nine big promotions in that period of time and of that number seven were either bankrupt and in the hands of the court or insolvent, and the other two were total failures. According to Barnard: "This money has gone down the sewer of economic waste right under our noses. In this time of abnormality and low ebb of business it would make a difference if that money were safe in our own city." Barnard contended that if this money now was in the hands of the people instead of the worthless stock certificates which they now hold, there would be less demand upon the charities, less discontent and better business conditions. He urged the public to place its savings only in investments of recognized safety.

A recent inventory and appraisal filed for record in the Montgomery probate court of one of Dayton's late wealthy citizens shows the following:

Stocks of various corporations $141,725.00
Appraised above par ..... 21,850.00
Appraised below par ..... 64,400.00
Appraised worthless ..... 55,735.00

Urges Home Building.

Chief Justice Cary T. Marshall of the Ohio Supreme Court, in an address before the Bellefontaine Chamber of Commerce recently, said: "The character of the American people has been entirely changed by the war. We have been buying too many diamonds and not enough alarm clocks. People have gone amusement mad and wish nothing but the luxurious life. We have been buying too many automobiles and not building enough homes. This country is lacking about 2,000,000 homes, and yet people would rather rent their abodes and ride in an auto. There has been too much speculation. There are too many women wearing short skirts and not enough wearing gingham aprons. Too much waste and not enough economy." The chief justice urged the placing of savings in local institutions of recognized safety.

Try to Get Money Hid Away.

There were many who did not invest in any of the many stock selling schemes with which the state has been flooded, but instead hoarded their savings at home. An endeavor is being made to point out to these persons that they are running a great chance of losing their savings from fire or theft. The country's economic condition, too, demands that all hoarded money be put into circulation, thereby re-establishing the country's stores of working capital. Business conditions, it has been pointed out, will show a decided trend for the better on the introduction of this capital which has been hidden away. Foreigners in many localities, not having an intelligent understanding of the safety of recognized financial institutions in their own localities, have been hiding their savings away. These persons must be taught how to make their money work in putting it in safe and sane places. They must be taught to distinguish between the glittering stock certificate with its high interest rates and the savings institution with its fair rate of interest and 100 per cent safety factor.

That the public has again turned to "safety first" as its investing slogan is evidenced by the slump in oil and other stocks of speculative purposes. But the wage earner, with his capacity for earning reduced through lack of employment, has yet to learn that he must go back to the old scale of saving in small amounts.

WILL NOT STAND FOR SECOND TERM

HUNTINGTON, Aug. 16.—Mayor C. W. Campbell persists in his determination not to stand for a second term. This expression applies two ways. It represents, in fine language of old England, his decision not to be a candidate for re-nomination and in good American, the fact that he apparently will not stand for it if his friends try to shove him into the fight. This, in effect, was what the mayor said in conversation with a Herald-Dispatch man yesterday afternoon.

"No, I am not going to run again," he said. "I'm counting off the weeks now, one by one, looking toward the end of my term."

"But," he was asked, "aren't they bringing pressure to get you to run?" "Yes," said the mayor, "some of them are talking it, but I want them to stop it. I want them to get it out of their heads."

Honestly Admitted Error.

The first and only edition of Cavalier's "Six Geometrical Discussions," published in Bologna, 1647, was illustrated with woodcuts of explanatory diagrams. At least the diagrams were explanatory to the initiated. Evidently they failed to make the matter in hand clear to the printer for he looked one of the cuts in the form upside down and so it went to press. One may easily imagine the consternation of Professor Cavalieri, the father of calculus, when he discovered the mistake. Probably to appease him, the apologetic publisher caused extra proofs of the woodcut to be pulled and pushed in each copy of the book over the inverted diagram. The honest printer for his part did not seek to hide his original fault, but left one end unpushed so that today lifting the flap reveals the mistake beneath.—Christian Science Monitor.

Lower Hudson Called North River.

The application of the name North river to the lower part of the Hudson dates back to the time of early Dutch settlements in New Jersey. North river is the historic name of the lower course of the river which flows between Manhattan and the Jerseys. It was north of the New Jersey settlements, just as the Delaware was south, and the two rivers were known to the Dutch colonists as the North river and the South river, respectively. The persistence of the alternate names of the river often is mentioned as one of the local idiosyncrasies of New York city.

Mr. Atlas Writes Interesting About Styles

After spending ten days in the New York markets, Wm. Atlas, manager and buyer for The Fashion, Gallia and Gay streets, writes The Times the following interesting review of the styles for the new season:

After spending ten days in the great New York market making purchases for Fall, I believe I have styles information of deep interest to you and your readers. The predominant shade for Fall is black, especially in silk dresses. Many cotton crepes are being shown, as well as charmeres and crepe black satin, while the newest material is matlasse, brocaded satin. Navy and brown are also shown, but black is most popular. The frocks all have distinct personality and there is much less of that uniform effect so common in American styles.

Sleeves are new and original. One is a three-fourth length large flowing sleeve that is both graceful and becoming. As to trimmings, beads, hand embroidery, braids, monkey fur, etc., are used in profusion.

The suits are in both long straight lines and shorter ripple effects. Some are strictly tailored, others are elaborately hand-embroidered. Furs are popular as trimmings for collar and cuffs. Nutria, ragtail, opossum, wolf and beaver are used in the better grades, while beaverette is the trimming for popular priced models.

Coats are fur trimmed, too, but the deiman and wrap coat is hardly seen at all. The new styles being narrow at the waist line, with white sweep at the bottom. Much hand-embroidery is used in new patterns, including the new French embroidery in straight vertical lines.

This will be a big fur coat season, as they are being shown at about half of last season's prices. Marmot, Bay seal, near seal and Hudson seal are shown in 36-inch and 40-inch coats and 45-inch dolmans, other trimmed in racoon, squirrel, ring-tail opossum, skunk or self-trimmed.

Hats are unusually interesting, in various large and small shapes, a great many turbans being shown, trimmed with fringe. Hand embroidery is also very good, and in the feathers, pheasant heads.

The talk of longer skirts seems only talk, as on Fifth avenue and in the shops the skirts are still short.

In conclusion, will say that it is the unanimous opinion of buyers that the modes this season are snappier and more original than ever before.

Sincerely,
Wm. Atlas, Manager,
The Fashion.

WHY YOU NEED IRON—

To make you strong and "briny" and put the power into your blood to overcome disease germs

PRACTICAL ADVICE ON HOW TO DEVELOP GREAT ENERGY AND ENDURANCE

The food you eat contains carbon. When your food is digested it is absorbed from the intestines into the blood. When the carbon in your food comes in contact with the oxygen carried by the iron in your blood, the carbon and oxygen unite and by so doing they give off tremendous energy, thereby giving you great force, strength and endurance. Without iron your blood carries no oxygen and without oxygen there is nothing to unite with the carbon in your food, so that what you eat does you no good—you do not get any strength from it—it is like putting coal into a stove without a fire. You cannot get any heat unless the coal unites with the fire.

The strongest weapon with which to prevent and overcome colds, pneumonia, kidney trouble, rheumatism, nervous prostration, in fact almost any disease or disease germ is plenty of good rich, pure blood, strength, energy and endurance and the most energy carrier in the body is organic iron, not metallic iron which people usually take, but organic iron, the iron in spinach, lentils and apples and like the iron contained in what is known as organic Nuxated Iron, which may be had from almost any druggist.

If you have been taking metallic iron without benefit, such is no proof that organic Nuxated Iron will not help you. Nuxated Iron often increases the strength, energy and endurance of weak, nervous, run down folks in two weeks time. It is such an extremely valuable product that even the Pope at Rome wrote especially of its merits in a communication to the Pharmacopeia Normale. It has been used and highly recommended by former United States Senators, Members of Congress, Judges of U. S. Courts, many physicians and prominent men.

Over 4,000,000 people are now using it annually. Satisfactory results are guaranteed or the manufacturers will refund your money. Sold by all druggists in tablet form only.—Advertisement.

DISPUTE OVER POSSESSION OF DEED

On Fishing Trip

B. H. Dillon and son, Selby, and James Hager of this city have gone to Ontario, where they will spend several weeks on a fishing trip.

Is Improving

Mrs. Charles Adams, of 1204 Young street, who was removed to Hempstead hospital Sunday for treatment for septicaemia, was reported slowly improving Tuesday.

Twenty Four Years Ago

During a severe storm lightning struck one of the cannons in Tracy Park. A number of young men were in the band stand, and when a sharp flash came, they say, it came down the electric light pole and leaped to the cannon, causing it to look like it had just been discharged. They noticed the odor of sulphur and were slightly shocked and badly scared.

The Excelsior band spent the day at Camp Arion very pleasantly. They were the guests of John Kirsch and were royally entertained.

Will S. Andres went to Cincinnati to join Col. Billy Thompson's Veriscope company.

A hail and wind storm visited the West Side and wrought havoc in its path, ruining a great deal of corn in the bottoms, leveling it to the ground and tearing much out by the roots. Some of the hailstones were as large as hulled walnuts.

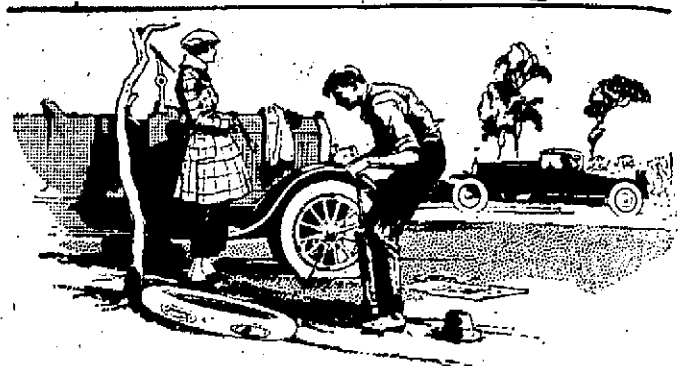

H. H. Summers, traveling salesman for Drew, Selby & Company, purchased the Lou Terry property on Waller street just prior to the latter's departure for the west.

George Parker, the old colored whitewasher and man-of-all-work, jumped aboard a "rattler" bound for Buffalo to attend the G. A. R. reunion.

Parker was gay and happy in a new suit of army blue with brass buttons, and had flags and ribbons stuck all over him.

Peanut's "Home" Unknown.

Like many other extensively cultivated plants, the peanut has not been found in a truly wild state, and hence it is difficult to fix upon its habitat as the place which it would call home. So widely has it been cultivated in eastern countries that some botanists have attempted to trace its spread from China to Japan, thence through the East India Islands to India and thence to Africa, where in the Seventeenth century it was so extensively cultivated and had become such an important article of native food that the slave dealers loaded their vessels with it, using it as food for their cargoes of captives.—Exchange.

What makes a tire go bad when it looks as sound as new?

A COUNTRY road! No garage or repair shop within call! A time perhaps when every minute counts! A blow-out! And you thought the tire was as sound as new!

What is it that causes such a tire to go bad? A few years ago four tire experts in the Thermoid Rubber Company decided to find out. They learned that the whole life of a tire hinges on the evenness with which the necessary strengthening materials are mixed with the pure rubber gum. If the resulting compound is filled with "lumpy" formations, the tire rapidly weakens and "blows out." If the compound is blended evenly and smoothly, the result is greatly increased wear.

Knowing this, the Thermoid scientists then perfected Crolide—a rubber compound that reduces "lumpy" formations to a minimum—that eliminates premature tire trouble.

Crolide Compound is today used exclusively in the manufacture of Thermoid Tires.

You are invited to call and see these new tires for yourself—also the famous Crolide Compound Tubes.

A WIFE IN THE MAKING

BY PHYLLIS PHILLIPS

THE BREACH WIDENS From that evening a coldness sprang up between husband and wife, that only increased with the days. Cherry attended to her business and threw herself heart and soul into the making of her hats. Work, alone, could bring forgetfulness from home worries. Ned did the same.

Towards the middle of November Arline Bates decided to go home and visit her father for a few weeks. The old gentleman had been ill and had written his daughter, pleading with her to come to him, if only for a short visit.

Arline had asked Ned for a holiday and departed two days later for Chicago. She left Ned despondent and up to his eyes in work, which he assured her over and over again he would not be able to get through without her able assistance. In spite of this, Arline left.

Cherry watched the girl go, with mixed feelings in her heart. She tried to fathom whether or not Ned felt badly about the thing, but it was difficult to pierce that exterior of his. Ned moped a bit to be sure, but he often did that. He spent less time at the office than before, but that could also be explained by his secretary's absence and his inability to accomplish as much without her.

Once Cherry suggested to him that he get another girl until Arline returned. At this, however, he shook his head, telling her that another girl would only bowl things up in the office. He would wait for Arline to return. Cherry again misunderstood his motives in this case. She had grown strangely alert to alarms by now.

Ned, also too proud to show his true disappointment, merely shrugged at her decision and went on packing his bag. Cherry had long ago ceased to want to be with him very much, this he knew, and felt deeply.

MORE INDICTMENTS PROMISED

CHICAGO, August 16.—Fifty more indictments in the federal grand jury investigation of illegal building material combinations were promised today by Robert E. Milroy, assistant district attorney in charge of the federal investigation of building combinations.

These indictments, if returned, will make more than 200 in connection with the probe. Stone and glass branches of the industry are to be investigated, Mr. Milroy said, and he asserted that manufacturers, contractors and union officials would be involved.

Persian "Home Brew"

The Persians claim to have originated the art of home brewing. Thirty centuries ago, according to an account, King Jamshid had a great jar of grapes. Pressure of the top layers on those beneath squeezed out the juice, which fermented and became sour. One of the king's wives, having learned of the liquid in the basement, which the king believed to be, and had labeled "poison," decided to use it to end her life. Although she drank freely, instead of dying she lost her despondency and became very happy. The king could not understand her sudden hilarity until she confessed. Thereafter, it is related, both the monarch and his court very regularly "poisoned" themselves on home brew.

Use Right Screw-Driver.

Probably the screw-driver and the hammer are the most used tools about the house, but it will surprise many people to know that there are three different kinds of drivers to fit three different sizes of screws. If the correct driver is being used it will just fit the slot of the screw and no pressure will be required to drive the screw. Further, the danger of the driver's slipping is reduced to a minimum, thereby preventing accident.

Miss Dolly Wise

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Miss Wise—As you have helped so many others I have come to you for a little advice. I am sixteen and been keeping company with a young man 22. Now Dolly we have been going together a good bit and he never broken a date until yesterday, would you quit him or not? As he is a good boy and I hate to give him up, also where could a girl my age get a job? LOVELE.

Unless he gives a substantial excuse and apologies, I would consider that he wasn't worthy of having any other engagements.

Gratefully—Call the Selby Shoe Company.

Dear Miss Wise—I am a girl of fifteen and rather tall for my age. Do you think I am too old to have my hair bobbed. My hair is very thin and nothing seems to do any good. Would you advise me to bob it or not? BERTIE.

You are not too old to have your hair bobbed. Since it is thin it may not be becoming at first, but it will thicken and the result will be better hair. I would advise you to rub mango cure, or vaseline into the scalp about twice a week. With short hair you will find the treatment easier than with long hair.

Dear Miss Wise—I have been going with a girl friend about a year and she met another girl and then she didn't have much time for me. So I gave her up. My mother said I should let her go. She hasn't spoken to me yet. Please tell me who should speak first? PEGGY.

If you were the first to stop speaking to the girl, you should be the first to speak again. But if she stopped speaking to you, you should wait until she speaks.

Dear Dolly—I am a girl sixteen years old and belong to a sort of club. I have an important part in it, but most of the others do not seem to care very much whether I am present or not at our weekly meetings.

Would you keep on going any way, or would you advise me not to go any more? BLUE EYES.

Something must be wrong with your personality if most of the people do not like you. Try to see what is wrong and correct the faults which make people turn from you. To begin with, apply the golden rule and see and see if you are doing unto others as you are doing unto others.

Perhaps you are bossy and unless you can have your own way you are not satisfied. Be more thoughtful of the people around you and show an interest in them if you want them to like you. I would advise you to stay in the club and try to make more friends.

Dear Dolly—About a month ago another boy told a boy friend of mine who liked me and whom I liked exceedingly well something about me that he did not like. How can I get him to like me a gain? HELEN.

Do not try to make him like you. If he loses interest in you simply because he hears something, it is not your place to try to keep him. Forget about him and make new friends.

Hopeful—Such an acquaintance without an introduction wouldn't prove very satisfactory. I don't know the young man.

Britain Wants America To Join

however, did not favor the idea which was accordingly dropped.

Want Three-Cornered Alliance

In other words back of the suggestion of a preliminary conference at Washington to precede the large conference in November was a hope that the United States would somehow announce her adherence to an enlarged Anglo-Japanese agreement to be a three-cornered sort of offensive and defensive alliance. The British government saw in such a pact a way to appease the dominion premiers and at the same time heal possible friction between the United States and Japan. But the American government squelched the suggestion of a preliminary conference without even permitting the subject of an enlarged Anglo-Japanese alliance to come up for formal consideration.

America Opposed to Dual Alliance

So far as the records show, there isn't anything formal in the exchanges between the representatives of the United States and British government to indicate that Great Britain asked our views. Nevertheless, it is purely personal way such information as the British have sought to determine our attitude was given. America is absolutely opposed to dual alliances or three-cornered treaties of any kind involving such obligations as are contained in the Anglo-Japanese agreement. To be sure, the Harding administration has placed itself on record as opposed to any arrangement, even though it include all the powers of the world such as the league covenant proposed whereby obligations of a military character are directly or indirectly implied or expressed. Feeling that way about the league of nations, any proposal for a three-cornered treaty would meet the same fate. The British have not yet learned the depth of feeling in the Harding administration at that phase of international affairs as only a few days ago Associated Press dispatches referred again to the hope of British officials that America would help in the negotiation of a pact that would be substituted for the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

Want Other Powers to Do Something

The American government is not engaging at this time in a discussion of her own desires or plans. She wants the powers who are invited here to do the suggesting and would the program. There isn't any American attitude toward the Far East which can be reduced to concrete terms. It is absolutely conforms for the moment to the general terms of the invitations sent all the powers. Beyond that the Washington government hasn't ventured and would prefer not to assume an initiative that might be misunderstood. The Washington government has nothing to say up the sleeve. In the words of President Harding himself, the United States is eager to "lay the cards on the table face up."

up the Kentucky side to Portsmouth. Three knife wounds in Cooper's abdomen were of such size to allow intestines to protrude. The young man was in great agony all during the trip and was unconscious most of the time.

After Cooper's death the machine returned to Vaneburg where the body was taken to the Plummer undertaking establishment.

The dead man leaves his parents and four sisters. It was later reported that Boots had run away.

WOUNDED MAN DIES ENROUTE TO CITY

Robert Cooper, 23, of Little Indian, Ky., near Petersburg in the extreme southern end of Lewis county about 18 miles back of Vaneburg was slain last night so seriously in the abdomen that he died this morning about five o'clock while being brought to the Schirman hospital in this city. The automobile carrying the badly wounded man had reached Firebrick just below South Portsmouth when death was the victor in the trip. Schirman hospital had been notified at one o'clock in the morning the wounded man was being brought here, and had everything ready for an emergency operation.

Sheriff Thomas Bertram was not notified of the fight in which Cooper was injured until this noon and he left right after the noon hour for Petersburg.

The fight according to meager reports received at Vaneburg was said to have been the result of a dispute over money one man owed to the other. The men met about midnight near a church at Petersburg. Another report was that a man named Gerald Boots, known as a bad actor in this section cut Cooper when he rushed to the aid of Sherman Stacy who was having trouble with Boots. Stacy was

It was said, saying in part: "This is to advise that the company intends to get the necessary service at Kent and a further indication of ill order and interference with men of ill repute, and disregard of instructions of the company, will be followed by necessary steps to preserve order and to insure the operation of the shops at Kent under arrangements that may be less desirable for those men who are established in the community, many of whom own their homes."

HARRISONVILLE REUNION TOMORROW

DELEGATIONS URGE IMPROVEMENT OF THE HIGHWAY TO IRONTON

From all indications, a monster reunion will attend the annual G. A. R. reunion and picnic at Harrisonville tomorrow, August 17, the fixed date for the yearly gathering for more than a quarter of a century.

The affair will be in charge of a committee from the Sons of Veterans and Harrisonville and the prize and veterans of the civil war will be the honored guests of the day.

A splendid program has been arranged by the committee and it promises to furnish plenty of amusement for the big crowd anticipated. A number of speakers will be heard during the day, including Attorneys Russell McCarty and George W. Sheppard and Judge N. B. Gilliland, and the singing times of the sixties will be rendered by the D.M.M. Corps composed of old soldiers. Other free attractions provided include a ball game and a balloon ascension.

There will also be side shows and a merry-go-round there and the refreshment stands will be run by the Sons of Veterans.

A delegation composed of prominent citizens of Ironton, Green township and of this city appeared before the County Commissioners at the Court House Tuesday seeking some improvement of the unpaved portion of the Portsmouth-Ironton pike from Franklin Furnace east to the Lawrence county line, a distance of about five miles.

City Solicitor O. E. Irish, of Ironton, was spokesman and he presented a strong appeal for the repair of the stretch of road, pointing out the necessity of such improvement before the coming bad weather. Mr. Irish in closing his remarks expressed the appreciation of himself and his colleagues to the contractors for allowing the new paving of the road to be used practically as soon as constructed, in stead of blocking the newly paved portion until the contract had been completed, as was usually the case.

After hearing the plea President J. H. Appel on behalf of the board, told the delegation that money had been appropriated some time ago for the improvement sought and gave assurance that the actual work would be started at the earliest possible time. It was explained that there will be about $700 available to spend there and it was estimated this would be sufficient to give the relief desired. Besides, the delegation was told that plans for paving the "gap" in question have already been approved by the state highway department and that the contract would be ready to be let next April, if present plans do not miscarry.

J. C. McClung, manager of the Marting Hotel, Ironton, discussed briefly the proposed Atlantic-Pacific highway, during which he told of the sentiment and spirit displayed by prominent men in cities along the route in this section in favor of establishing the new road and pointed out the benefits to be derived by the cities touched by the route. He stated that it was planned to hold something in the near future for the purpose of effecting a permanent association to encourage sentiment and work to put such highway "over" and the commission professed their co-operation when the time came.

In the delegation were A. H. Mitchell, president of the Citizens' Bank; A. C. Lowry, president of The Marting Hotel; Charles Horn, vice-president of the First National bank; and O. E. Irish, all of Ironton; Joseph Boynton, Samuel Oakes of Green township; and Willie Harold, George Vandervoort, Harry W. Miller and Judge Harry Bill of this city.

Strike Affects Local Sheet Mill Workers

WHEELING, W. Va., Aug. 16.—A strike in all mills of the Wheeling Steel Corporation to take effect immediately was called late Monday by the executive committee of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Plate Workers. The alleged refusal of the corporation to negotiate a wage scale for one of the subsidiaries, the Whitaker-Glossner Company, was said to be the cause of the strike.

Other plants of the corporation affected by the strike will be the Wheeling Iron and Steel Company and the Latrobe Iron Works. Several mills of the latter have been in operation, but not with full force. Normally between 2,000 and 3,000 Amalgamated members are said to be employed by the corporation.

It was stated here Tuesday that there would be no new developments in the local situation until M. M. McGhee, W. R. Edwards and Walter Perry would arrive home Wednesday from Wheeling. They have represented the union steelworkers of this city at a big conference held in Wheeling.

Officials of the union stated here Tuesday that possibly 600 sheet mill workers would be affected by the strike. They stated that no other departments of the Whitaker-Glossner plant here would be affected.

"Until our committee gets back from Wheeling we will have nothing to give out except that we received the strike order and it is on," W. S. Palmer, an official of the local chapter of Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers Association told a Times man Tuesday.

At the offices of the Whitaker-Glossner company it was stated that no news of a strike had been received as the local mill is idle for the present.

Numerous remedies had failed, but after taking Nerv-Worth, she reports that she can eat and sleep much better, and is only too glad to tell what it has done for her. Baby Show, Baseball Game, Big Parade Will Be Among Labor Day Celebration Events

According to reports of committees laid out at the Central Labor Council meeting the Labor Day parade and outing this year is to be bigger and better than any held in previous years. The general committee in charge of the Labor Day program plans completed its organization last night and is now ready to function. A more complete report will be ready for the next meeting August 20.

From present indications over 1,000 persons will be in the parade to be held in the morning. All the various unions and locals will be represented, many to have their full membership in line. The parade will be in four divisions and it is probable that other divisions will be added should the number of marchers exceed present expectations. There will also be a number of floats representing various organizations.

It has been decided to form for the parade at Second and Court streets, the line of march to start at this corner.

The general holiday program will be carried into the afternoon with different events at Millbrook park. The feature event will be a baseball game with the local Central Labor team playing a nine from Russell, Ky. There will be races and running contests for boys and girls and women. A baby show will be held, probably at the Casino. An effort is also being made by the committee to secure the Casino for a home talent show.

THE MARKETS

NEW YORK STOCKS
NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Professional selling of speculative issues was active resumed at the opening of today's stock market. Shares which accelerated the recent reaction were again weakest, notably oils, rubbers, tobacco and the less active equipments.
Mexican Petroleum, United States
Rubber, first preferred, United Retail Stores, Sears Roebuck and International Harvester lost 1 to 2 points, the latter making a new low price for the year. General Electric Industrial Alcohol and Continental Can extended yesterday's losses. Among rails the only noteworthy feature was a one point decline in Louisville and Nashville. Foreign exchange showed further unsettlement on the greater weakness of marks, which were quoted at 1.05 to 1.06.
Shorts in almost every branch of the list during the forenoon. Little support was seen except in the high grade rails and Industrials. Bethlehem and Crucible Steels were heavy and lost one to four points resulting from moderate offerings of American Steel Foundries, Railway Steel Spring,
American Steel Car, Westinghouse Electric, General Electric, and New York
Air Brake. Van American Petroleum lost 1/2 point. Shorts in oil, losing almost three points.
Chandler, Studebaker, Industrial Alcohol, International and National Lead forfeited one to two points. Call money opened at six percent.
The stock market was in process of further liquidation today. Numerous speculative issues extended recent losses by one to four points. Sales approximated 450,000 shares.
The closing was weak.

CLOSING PRICES OF OHIO STOCK

December 1.23 1/2 to 1.23 1/2.

Chicago Grain And Provisions

CHICAGO GRAIN
CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Dowry turns in the price of wheat resulted today from weakness in the New York stock market. Opening quotations, which varied from unchanged figures to 1/4 cent higher, with September 1.23 1/2 to 1.25 and December 1.24 1/2 to 1.26 were followed by a general setback to well below yesterday's finish.
Corn was steady with wheat. After opening unchanged to 1/4 @ 1/2 to 3/4 higher, with September 86 1/2 @ 87 1/2 to 57 1/2 the market underwent a sag all around.
Oats descended to the lowest price level since September delivery has been touched since 1912. Prices opened 3/4 off to 3/4 @ 7 1/2 c up. Sept. 34 1/2 to 35 and then suffered material declines.
Lower quotations on hogs pulled down provisions.
Later, the market fell to new low records prices for the 1921 crop. The close was heavy 1/4 to 1 1/2 net lower with September 5 1/2 @ 5 1/2 to 55 1/2.

Not Negro Songs

Most people fancy in a vague way that Stephen Foster's songs are negro or were inspired by the negro music. But "Old Folks at Home" and the other Foster melodies are about as unlike negro music as anything could possibly be. That their words are often in negro dialect and express negro sentiments is simply a historic accident due to the fact that in Foster's day the negro minstrels, real or "cooked," were the only means of bringing music before the public.

Character Greatest Asset

The character is the best collateral, and the late J. P. Morgan. Character has been the best asset the American people have possessed. To maintain character should be their chief aim and purpose, and to this end they should devote all effort.

Bremerton's Human Story

By FREDERICK CLARKE.

(© 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

Bremerton huddled up in his seat, looked out of the window of the West-bound Limited.

The train slowed, drew into the station, waited a few moments, and then puffed out again. A man came into the carriage and stopped at Bremerton's side.

"Excuse me, sir, but are you John Bremerton?" asked the other.

"Well?" Bremerton demanded very curtly.

"I was sure that I was on your track. I know I had recognized you. I want the inside story of the failure of the Cornucopia bank. I am a representative of the Iowa Free-Solier."

"You see, sir," the reporter continued, "of course we have all the details of the failure. I want a real human story."

"A real human story!" repeated Bremerton mechanically, and smiled a little bitterly at the irony of events which had left his life except for his widened experience, just where it had been when he had left Framington, a penniless country boy, 15 years before.

And his first sweetheart—Lizzie Gray! He had written—every day for a month, after a year his letters ceased. After two years he had stopped thinking of her. He had heard, not long afterward, that she was married.

"Framington! Change here for Des Moines!" shouted the conductor, and Bremerton started up hastily and seized his suitcase. He had wanted to see the old town again.

Standing upon the platform he found the reporter at his elbow. He had entirely forgotten him.

"I'm afraid there's a wait of two hours for the Des Moines train," he said. "We just missed the connection. Now, Mr. Bremerton, won't you please help me with this story? It will mean a great deal to me, sir."

Bremerton was a man of quick decisions. He pulled out his watch. "Three o'clock," he said, glancing at the dial. "I'll be back at four, and I'll give you that story."

He trotted out of the station. Except that a few new buildings had sprung up it was astonishing how little the town had changed during the 15 years of his absence. And at the end of the lane was the Grays' cottage. There was the rustic stile where Lizzie and he had met those 15 years ago.

A woman was walking up the lane. She had turned in from below, just where the Gray cottage abutted on the pike. She would see him when she came out of the bend a few feet from the stile. Bremerton remembered how his heart had hammered that morning he had first kissed her. It was here, and Lizzie had walked just as she walked now, unconscious that he waited there. He had wanted to run away, as he wanted to run now. And she had looked up suddenly and seen him, just as she looked up now.

And both had trembled, just as both were trembling now.

And he had kissed her, just as he kissed her now.

She had hardly changed except that her figure had grown mature and her face more thoughtful, graver.

"You are—not married, then?" he stammered.

She looked at him coldly, the flush of shame slowly fading out of her cheeks.

"How can you ask me that, John?" she said.

"But I heard—I heard—"

"That's why you ceased to write?" "No," he answered. "I ceased to write before I was told. But still, I am sure that I had not heard so I should some day have come back."

"To redeem your pledge, John? Well, I release you from it. So let your conscience rest. My school occupies all my life and is my whole interest. While you—you are, or were, a very busy man and a very famous one."

"Then you have heard?" he asked.

"Of course I've heard of you, John Bremerton," she answered. "I—we have all followed your career with the greatest interest," she continued, coloring faintly. "You know we are all proud of you in Framington."

"Oh, if only I had never gone!" he cried. Lizzie, I've come back to stay—with you."

"With me?" she repeated. "With me, John?"

"I want you," he cried. "I have never known what happiness meant since I went away. Will you be my wife?"

"You—you mean that, John?" she stammered.

He drew her into his arms, and she lay there at last, happily.

"Tell me you love me," he whispered.

STEEL PLANT AND SELBY TEAMS BATTLE TO TIE

Rulings Made By Industrial League Board

Portsmouth, O., Aug. 15.

TEAM STANDING

Team	W.	L.	Pct.
N. & W.	12	7	.632
Steel Plant	12	10	.550
Selby	12	12	.500
Central Labor	9	15	.375
Selby	6	16	.273

GAMES THIS WEEK

Tuesday, Aug. 16—Central Labor vs. Selby.

Wednesday, Aug. 17—Steel Plant vs. N. & W.

Thursday, Aug. 18—No game.

Friday, Aug. 19—Steel Plant vs. Selby.

Saturday, Aug. 20—Steel Plant vs. Selby.

In one of the prettiest games of the season, and before a super-enthusiastic crowd, even the "some were chilled to the marrow," Selby and Steel Plant teams battled to their second tie score of the season, Monday evening, when both teams played like demons, darkness stopped the proceedings at the close of the seventh inning with one run each.

The game was a pitchers' battle between "Irish" Burke of the Selbys and Clyde Whitlatch of the Steelmen. There was little to choose between the two, but Selby's pitcher was more concerned. Both had been on their feet for some time, and accounts of the game were given in the early part of the evening. Selby allowed six hits while Whitlatch was nipped for seven. The former fanned five men, while Whitlatch fooled four batters.

The struggle was a bitter one from start to finish and it is too bad the teams could not have continued to a definite decision. It was quite dark when the last Steelman went out, and when the last Selby man went out, the umpires did the right thing when the game was called off. The chances are that the game would have been fifteen minutes earlier, provided it will be possible for the players to reach the grounds earlier. Some definite statement along this line will likely be reached by President Conroy early Tuesday.

The game as played is covered below—play by play—behalf of the N. & W. team concerning the game of August 12 between the Steel Plant and N. & W. teams and which was won by the Steelmen by the score of 3 to 0. The N. & W. protest was based on the grounds that Pitcher Ches Lucas who was on the mound for the Steelmen was ineligible to play. The committee has ruled that Mr. Lucas was not eligible to participate in the game that was protested and has not only thrown out this game but the one of August 9, in which Mr. Lucas was the losing pitcher.

According to the findings of the committee the two teams mentioned understand as they did before the crucifixion series was started. Should the findings of the committee be heeded, then the Steel Plant and N. & W. club must play over the two games in question. And according to their ruling it will now be necessary for the Steel Plant to secure permission of the clubs before Mr. Lucas will be eligible to play as a member of that team.

Mr. Lucas when was given under a contract of August 9 and duly signed by Edward Switalski, manager of the Central Labor team. Mr. Clare submitted facts to show Mr. Lucas had pitched for 30 days, having quit the Central Labor team on July 13. Mr. Lucas also contended that inasmuch as Mr. Lucas was regular employee of the Steel Plant that it was not necessary to secure permission to play his position. Manager Goode contended that Lucas was a member of the Central Labor team and that before the Steel Plant could legally play him it was necessary to follow the established rule securing the consent of four members of the league.

It will be seen that two members of the Arbitration Board upheld Mayor Goode, while one voted in favor of the Steel Plant team. However, the Board went a step further, ruling that the game of August 9th must be thrown out, as well as the one at issue. And there the matter rests.

IT'S A QUEER PHASE

It was all one story from all over Ohio, Tuesday, a total, a woeful lack of interest in the primaries.

Only in one place, and that a mere village, does it appear there was as much as a fifty per cent vote cast.

Cincinnati had a proposition to issue millions of bonds to construct a magnificent boulevard, the smallest vote in history was cast.

Columbus voted on the all absorbing issue of daylight saving. Something like twenty per cent of electors cast their ballots and more daylight won "a sweeping majority" one thousand against the fifty thousand that didn't vote.

Here in Portsmouth the Republican nominee got less than a thousand as against the eight thousand that he was not cast and yet his greatest asset in the campaign will be "he is the party's choice."

And men and sisters, just dwell upon it, in the face of this apparent farce and fraud, not a single legislator dares lift his voice in favor of the repeal of the primary law.

Talk of waste and extravagance, of the burdens of taxation. Why the primary is all these rolled together and then some. Why in some precincts the cost ran as high as $7 for each vote.

Does anybody maintain at this day and date that the character and ability of nominees is improved by the primary, that it rid of boss rule? Oh such unutterable nonsense. The boss had their hands in the mess up to the elbows? It makes no difference whether one man or a hundred become the triumphant majority. No, we'll take that back, it does make a difference. Ordinarily the big boss has got to name candidates of some standing, because he knows not to be the surest way to lose caste; but any sort of a fellow can get into a primary and because so many sorts of is the very reason why the best men fight rather shy of them.

It is high time for Ohio to abandon the primary farce.

GOOD RAILROAD SHOWING

A better outlook is afforded by the railroad gains showing the carriers steadily advancing in the last two months. Net earnings increased in June to more than $50,000,000, and rose in July to $54,000,000. As a business barometer, the transportation interests furnish a reliable sign of the general course of the nation's activities.

The improvement noted by the principal roads is convincing evidence that business conditions are gradually building up on a sound foundation following the period of readjustment after the abnormal influences of war times. The increasing earnings of the railroads bespeak the growing volume of shipments. Markets are opening for more products. In most lines there is resumption of normal prices. With complete revival of industrial activity, when mills and mines operate again in full force, the corner will be turned for the entire country.

Those who apprehend a continued slackness are no longer warranted in predicting stagnation. The fall outlook is much more favorable than it seemed to them a few months ago.

ENORMOUS INTERNATIONAL TRADE

SOME figures as to the enormous total of international trade in the year 1920 are now available, and they show that the commerce of the world, in round numbers, aggregated the immense sum of $100,000,000,000 in the 12 months. In the year which marked the beginning of the war the stated values of the world's trade was $40,000,000,000, and this had grown to $63,000,000,000 in the closing year of the war. One especially interesting feature of this comparison of world trade in 1920 with that of a few years ago lies in the increasing share which United States manufactures form of world trade. Prior to the war we supplied but about one-sixth of the manufactures entering international trade and in 1920 one-third.

Lately there have been printed statistics showing a large decrease in American exports in the last few months, as compared with a year ago. In the light of figures like those quoted above, the decline is only natural, and might almost be termed a movement in the direction of normal conditions. Foreigners reduced their purchase of foreign goods, much as Americans reduced their buying of goods, both domestic and foreign. The whole world was engaged in an orgy of buying, and this wholesale purchasing has ceased. Comparisons of present trade, made with the commerce of the big buying year of 1920, make the situation look much more serious than it really is.

Commercial organizations in all parts of the country report that a better tone is appearing in the business world. Wonder if that will make the pessimist change his.

Germany the other day celebrated the second anniversary of the German imperial republic. It has endured longer than many predicted.

Nobody can tell us that nature has no sense of humor, when we inspect some of this season's comicalities.

The king of the Hedjaz has proclaimed a "holy war", just as though that sort of a reaction could be holy.

If King George is hard up he should be able to appreciate how the average man feels most of the time.

It is proposed to increase the income tax exemption to $100 for each dependent. Bless their little hearts.

Uncle Sam's Hunters

By Frederic J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 16.—

A long and bitter warfare is being waged within the borders of the United States, neither side asking nor granting quarter. No armistice will be signed, and there will be no peace terms. The end of the battling will be the extinction of one element in the conflict. On one side are ranged between four and five hundred government hunters, professional killers employed by the Biological Survey of the Department of Agriculture. On the other side are aligned all the predatory beasts of the nation, from ground squirrels and jack rabbits up to fierce stock-killing mountain lions, bears, and wolves.

Hundreds of millions of dollars damage is done annually by wild animals. The big killers like the wolves and bears take a tremendous toll in the lives of cattle, sheep, and horses on the western ranges, but the greatest damage is done by gophers and other smaller animals who destroy pasturage capable of supporting millions of cows and sheep. The damage done by the predatory beasts is estimated at $300,000,000 a year.

Unfortunately, it is not easy to arouse interest and secure co-operation in destroying the smaller and more numerous pests. The dramatic appeal of hunting wolves and bears makes it easy for the government hunters to pursue this work with success. These destroyers are diminishing fast.

Money was first provided for slaying predatory animals, big and little, in 1915. Since then there has been an annual appropriation, and as a result 200,000 beasts, big and little, have been dispatched to the happy hunting ground by the rifles, traps, and poison baits of the Federal Marshals. For instance, when the war started in New Mexico there were 300 gray wolves, cattle killers of the worst sort. Now there are but a score, and soon there will be none.

Three-quarters of the 200,000 animals slain have been coyotes, but the total includes some 2,000 gray wolves, each one of which destroyed live stock in the course of a year valued at $1,000. The total includes 240 mountain lions, each capable of fearful destruction of cattle and sheep. But the humble prairie dog still occupies some 100,000,000 acres of the best range land in the Rocky Mountain region. Prairie dogs destroy from 10 to 75 percent of the grass in the districts they inhabit, which means that in New Mexico alone, if the rodent was cleared out, there would be saved pasturage enough to support 400,000 additional cattle, or 1,500,000 sheep.

Victims of the Killer

Some of the big animal outlaws tracked to their doom by the government hunters have had long and bloody records. One mountain lion was bagged in Wyoming which was known to have killed $1,000 worth of live stock in a month. Another was killed which had a record of slaying seven cows in the spring of one year. A pair of wolves was shot in Wyoming which had caused $2,500 damage in a single year. A ranch owner in Texas reported that he lost nearly 300 sheep in a year through the depredations of six coyotes. Later the whole band was accounted for by government hunters.

Killing the larger beasts, particularly the wolves, in some parts of the west is also a precaution for the protection of human life and health, as they often carry rabies. About 1,500 persons are known to have been bitten by rabid wolves, and half a hundred deaths are officially charged to them. Attacks by these crazed animals, suffer terrible destruction.

Biographies of some of the big beasts killed by Uncle Sam's rifles and traps are stranger than any animal fiction. The most recent of the well known animal criminals to fall before these hunters was an enormous black bear killed near Big Pine, Wyoming. Not only did this powerful and crafty animal ravish the flocks of sheep with great regularity, but took delight in tearing the sheep so that in their haste to escape the awful fate threatening them they stampeded, the fleeing animals behind piling up on those in front of them, smothering many to death. The worst trick of this outlaw, though, was destroying camp. Luckily, he never reached any camps, but accounted for many outfits, tearing up the tents, smashing camp furniture, and raiding the larders.

It is, Williams and Del Beatch, government hunters, were stringing some traps in Wyoming not long ago when a terrific sheep leader burst out of the bushes, white with fear, and put him like a beam of light. He paused long enough to explain that "The Bear" had chased him out of camp, and went off with a high speed. Williams and Beatch reached the camp as quickly as possible, and found it destroyed, but the bear had gone. They trailed the beast, and ran across a heap of forest debris, in which they found a side of bacon cached by "The Bear", the only title the beast had. There were no other clues to the Big Pine herders and campers, just the one big outlaw.

The hunters went along the trail a little farther, and suddenly the big killer charged them. Three bullets were placed behind the bear's ear by one hunter, and the other sent a shot through his spinal column. The beast backed but a few yards of reaching them when he collapsed. The animal was extraordinarily large for his species, weighing 550 pounds, was six feet two inches long, and his hind foot measured 11 1/2 by 6 inches. He was terribly torn by a recent fight, evidently a conflict with a grizzly seen in the vicinity not long before.

Another recent animal outlaw to meet the same fate was "Old White", notorious and ferocious leader of a pack of wolves that for years caused terrific damage to the flocks around Bear Springs Mesa, Colorado. The hunters accounted for "Old White's" mate early in the year, and another wolf of the pack was shot, but the crafty leader kept out of sight and stepped lucky in avoiding traps. But finally a blind set of four traps proved too much for him, and his 12 years of cattle murder ended.

Master Animal Criminal
The most dramatic death was that of "The Custer Wolf". The most adroitly concealed trap seemed as clear as daylight to him. He would kill in one spot one night, and he reported fifty miles away the next. The superstitious credited him with a charmed life. He was supposed by the credulous to be not merely a wolf, but a monstrous, half wolf and half mountain lion, with the craft and cruelty of both. Public opinion credited him with all the qualities of the werewolf of ancient legends.

In the nine years of his outlawry around Custer, South Dakota, the "Custer Wolf" killed stock valued at $25,000. The bounty on his head was raised from $100 to $500. Professional hunters sought him for gain. Sportsmen sought him for glory. He laughed at danger, and continued his career of crime unscathed. The ranchmen tried a big roundup after dogs and poison failed, but this failed too, and Williams, the government hunter, was called in to do the job, with instructions to stick to it until the wolf was dead.

Williams located the wolf around some old dens in the Pelger Mountains. He scented up the soles of his shoes, and started stringing his traps. He got his first sight of the wolf after several days. The wily beast was flanked by two coyotes, ranging from 100 to 200 yards on either side of him. These beasts he tolerated, but would not let them come near him. They were welcome to his kills after he had eaten his fill.

Williams shot these bodyguards, and still the big prize was too elusive. Twice the wolf stepped on the jaws of traps and once nearly rolled or fell into one, but pulled away, leaving only hair to show that he had been there. Once he cornered the hunter in a canyon after he had killed several cattle and eaten his fill, but two horsemen riding up gave the wolf the alarm, and he escaped again. Finally, after another successful escape from a trap which held part of his foot, the "Custer Wolf" got into a trap last October which held him fast. He broke the snare and ran away with the trap on his foot. Williams trailed him three miles, got a chance at him with his rifle, and brought him down.

TURBAN IS AGAIN SHOWN FOR FALL

Although the wide brimmed hats had unusual vogue during the summer all indications point toward a revival of the turban for fall wear. A turban more than any other hat seems to be made for the suit days. Here is a simple, snug effect which is popular. It is a soft dachshund shape trimmed with all-over embroidery or braiding.

The Stars and Stripes
From dusk till dawn the living light sheathed the tower this night. She kept the tower this night. And fast her nimble fingers flew to sew the stars upon the blue. With weary eyes and aching head she stitched the stripes of white and red.

And when the day came up the stair complete across a barren chair hung Betsey's little flag.

Like shadows in the evening gray the Centurials fled away.

With broken boots and ragged coats, but hoarse defiance in their throats, they bore the marks of want and cold. And some were lame and some were old, and some with wounds unhealed bleed, but bravely floating overhead was Betsey's battle flag.

When fell the battle's leaden rain the soldier hushed his moans of pain and raised his dying head to see King Georgius' troopers turn to flee. Their charging column reeled and broke, and vanished in the rolling smoke. Before the glory of the stars the snowy stripes, the scarlet bars of Betsey's little flag.

The simple stone of Betsey Ross is covered now with mold and moss, but still her deathless banner flies and keeps the color of the skies. A nation thrills, a nation bleeds. A nation follows where it leads. And every man is proud to wield his banner upon a nation's field.

For Betsey's battle flag.
—Minnie Irving.

Size No Difference
The young man on vacation was proudly exhibiting his afternoon catch. One young woman remarked demurely:

"Fish go in schools, do they not?"
"I believe they do," he replied, "but why do you ask?"
"Oh, nothing; only I was just thinking that you must have broken up an infant class."

Famous Anecdotes of Famous People

Mark Twain
At one time when Mark Twain was very busy with one of his earlier books he sat for a tour of Europe with his family. While on shipboard he kept up his writing.

One day as he went to work he left word with his little daughter to explain his absence to anyone who inquired.
"If they ask for me," he said, "say that I won't be long. I am only going to write an anecdote."
A few minutes later a friend asked the child where her father was.
"He won't be gone long," she lisped. "He said he'll only going to ride a nainy-goat."

Tongue Twisters
Articulation is an essential element in the mechanics of reading. It can be secured only by constant watchfulness and care on the part of both pupil and teacher. Try these:

1. The strife and sunshine and the good man rejoiced.
2. Some shun sunshine. Do you shun sunshine?
3. Did you ever see a saw saw like that saw saw?
4. He drew long, legible lines along the lovely landscape.
5. The old, cold, cold sold a school skiff.
6. Round the rough and rugged rocks the rugged runner ran on six round beads and braided brand beads.
7. Pluma placed a pewter platter on a pile of plates.—The North American Teacher.

His Luck
The fan indicated a passing man.
"That fellow Bibbs must have been born with a horseshoe in his mouth," he said.

"Lucky, is he?"
"Lucky! Why, listen. He decided he'd have to have a front tooth pulled. He was hurting his son, but he only had one dollar and wanted to go to the ball game. On his way to the dentist he passed the ball park and a foul came over the fence. It hit him in the mouth and knocked out his aching tooth. Then he turned in the ball at the gate and passed into the game and finally went home with his dollar still in his pocket."

Aw, Take a Chance
"Grandma, can you help me with this problem?"
"I would dear, but do you think it would be right?"
"No, I don't suppose so, but you might have a shot at it and see."

New-York-Day-By-Day

BY O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK, August 16.—The world will wait long for another Caruso. Empires perish but are endured. New York will always remember his heroic tenor. He was a part of the city—like the Woolworth tower and Central Park. Scandal clustered about his name but he was never the rake. He was the victim of innumerable temptations but at the close of his career he was happily married and the father of a glorious and passionately loved daughter.

I saw him last a summer ago. The golden flood of afternoon sunshine was about that magic thoroughfare Fifth Avenue. Caruso turned in from Forty-Second street at the public library corner. He Segurala was with him—De Segurala with his foppish monocle and owl's store. And Caruso in his green Alpine hat with the tiny feather. His cane carried military fashion and the light fit of his clothes, especially over the massive chest that carried Lagaglia's sob, were strikingly attractive to crowds.

Heads turned pivot-like. Necks craned over the hurrying avenue buses. Newsboys piped: "Gee, Kerosene." He was not unconscious of this attention. He loved it just as we all love it. For Caruso was not the proverbially laughing sign with a high C. He was an irresistible boy. I imagine he staged his avenue promenade at the anxious moment when he would not the most attention and who can blame him.

He liked newspaper men—and he was forever suggesting publicity stunts to Billy Guard, the Metropolitan's official puffer. He had a room filled with scraps heralding his fame and he browsed among them often. He was human and understandable to a remarkable degree and it accounts largely for his popularity. His memory was remarkable. He had a trick of singling out something unusual about a person and catching it in the archives of his memory. Four years after I first met him he greeted me with: "Ah! The gentlemen with the initials like two eyes." I do not know that he remembered my last name—it doesn't matter. He had eternally agon my friendship.

Caruso loved to express himself in his caricatures. He was an accomplished artist and in a few lines could suggest the faces about him. He abused the use of tobacco and was rarely without a cigarette. I have loved him down the avenue at different times and as soon as one was finished he lighted another from the stub. This went on from morning until night. His appetite too was enormous and meals were eaten. Caruso's friend Shorty, the pugilist newsway at the old Katerbaker corner, summed up the estimate of the man. "Caruso dead," said Shorty. "Gee, what a waste of a guy he was."

Broadway is critical about the severe choking that Irene Castle got from her leading man in fluting a scene of a photograph. Mrs. Castle is in the hospital and was evidently hurt. Broadway cries: "The old apple sauce!" and wonders how many will go to the play just to see the choking scene.

The convert charge has entirely disappeared in New York restaurants. People found that there was no law to make them pay and they stubbornly refused. Many places still have the charge for those who will pay it and it is the stranger to New York who pays. New Yorkers consider it a sign of "boobery." It was a swanking unjust custom at best. Hotels and restaurants made the plea that it was to take care of "the overhead." It is a phrase that has long been overworked. Every business has its "overhead," but that does not give it an excuse to gouge patrons.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

By W. G. STUBLEY

The Stubby Service, Gallipoli, Ohio

Des Moines Walking

The plight of Des Moines, now without street car service, and likely to continue so, is what may happen in many other communities as a result of the popular starvation policy toward all public utilities. Scarcely a city in its political control of street railroads. The voice of the people has been insistent for cheap rides and the politicians have acted along the lines of least resistance.

Twenty years ago the street railroad stock of Columbus, O., was so valuable an investment that well to do men left it to their heirs. Popular clamor for lower fares and strikes for higher wages wrecked the legitimate prosperity of the Columbus system, and made its securities a byword, even before the war came with its increases in operating expenses.

Transportation, quick and convenient is something every city must have for its streets. Without it the wheels of commerce will not go round. The street cars alone can meet the needs in cities too small for subways and elevated roads. Every business man knows this, and is hurt by even temporary cessation of traffic. Ere long realization of the economic necessities of street railroads will come, and with it a more useful attitude on the part of a clannish public. But already public injustice has made capitalists shy of all enterprises dependent on public favor for protection against political oppression and as a consequence there is likely to be more walking in many communities.

The Sheriff

The dignity, authority and power of sheriffs have recently been signally demonstrated in Sangamon County, Illinois, by the arrest of the Governor recently indicted for embezzlement of public funds—a governor, who, shouting "I'll never consent," consented. The word sheriff originally meant noble, illustrious, princely. In England and the United States the sheriff is the chief executive officer of a county charged with the administration of justice under the direction of the courts, and having at his disposal for the execution of the laws and the preservation of the peace the entire civil force of the county.

As the one man in a county to whom is entrusted the execution of the decrees of all the courts of a state from the highest down—in his county—the sheriff, properly armed with a legal warrant, is a formidable power before which even a governor must bow. The Governor of Illinois, after declaring "his power on earth" could arrest him, dodged the power of the sheriff of Sangamon county for three weeks by absconding himself from his official residence. But the sheriff finally availed his return and upon it demonstrated his power in spite of a blustering official who sought escape from trial for the crime charged against him.

The incident is not without its lesson. The power and majesty of the law reside in a sheriff properly armed. He is not a man who may be stopped in the legal execution of the decrees of courts and the finding of grand juries. The humiliation of a governor who sought to flout the law is a whole some warning to criminals of high station the country over.

A man who has a book on economics the biography of a great man, a history a collection of essays, a few translations of ancient classics and Plutarch and Bacon on his book table, has few reasons for tireless leisure.

"Coning—Movies Without Pistols," says a headline. "Impossible! Where would Ed Hart and Tom Mix get off? And how would juvenile delight in killings be nourished?"

A sign of the times: Bavaria's schools have dropped the compulsory study of French and substituted for it the English language.

GIRL KNOWS HOW AERIAL ATTACK IN WAR MUST FEEL

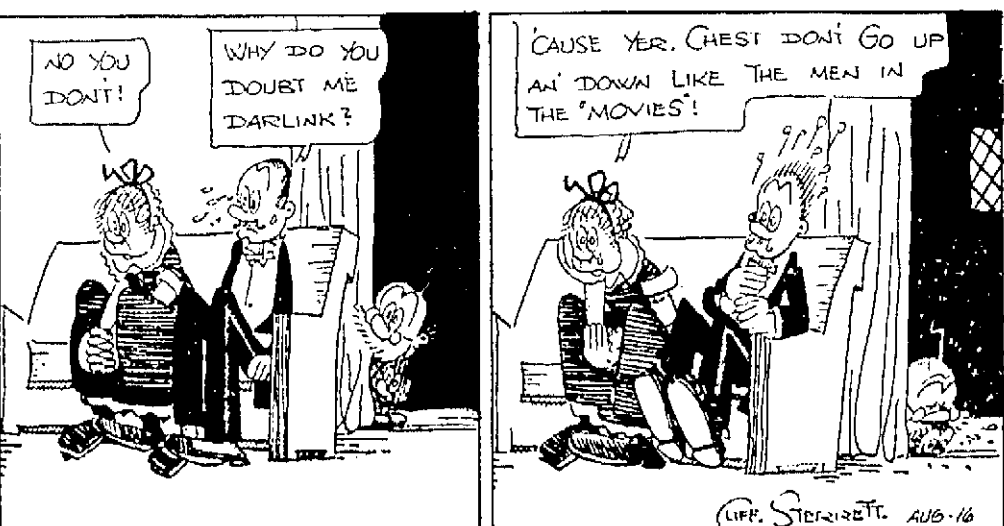

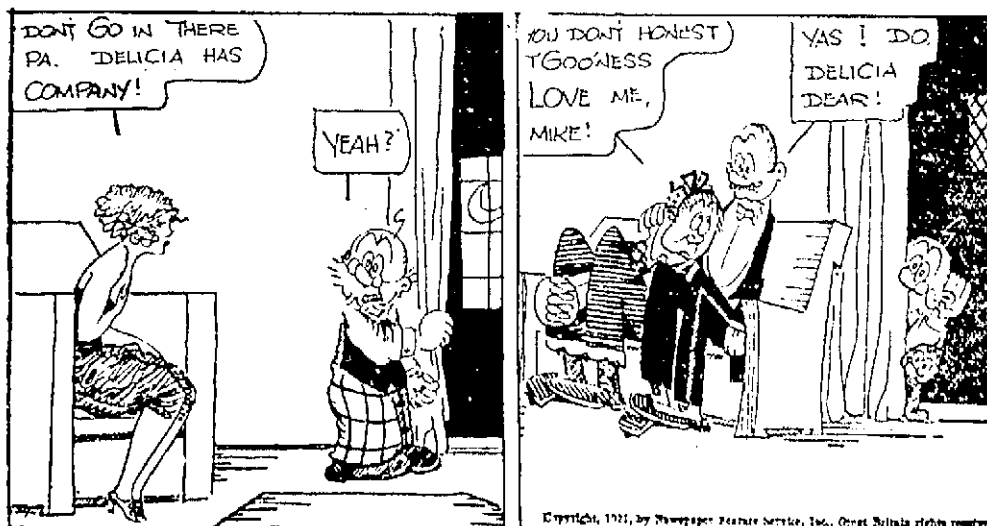

Miss Grace Buxton.

While in a motorboat in Narragansett bay with a party of friends, Miss Grace Buxton of Oakland Beach was wounded by bullets fired from a machine gun on a naval seaplane flying nearby. The boat was riddled with holes. "I know how the boys in the war felt," she fired upon from the air," says Miss Buxton. "The airman in the plane said that a gun on the craft jammed and fired itself."
